Emperor's Exhortation

Once, my kingdom knew peace. Now it only knows evil. Rampaging forces have infected my realm, destroying Kodan's second largest city. Their provocations continue unabated, threatening the safety of my people and making travel unsafe in every part of my kingdom.

They approach the seat of my power, lurking invisibly in the darkness under my castle. At the head of the deity is an ancient wizard. Plans to dispatch him have failed, as he has set up magical barriers that have befuddled even my most experienced scouting parties.

As the first Emperor of the Kingdom of Kodan, I call upon you, brave adventurers, to seek out the source of this living menace and restore calm and civility to Kodan. For your efforts, I promise these riches: 100,000 pieces of gold and choice southern lands for each member of your party. Beyond these, you will bring honor to your family name, a name which will be repeated through the centuries with great reverence.

Whether you are driven by ancestral duty or adventurous desire, go forth with fortune in your spirit. Be diligent in your journey. Shed yourself for battle, recover from the setbacks that may befall you, and above all, pleasure in the nobility of your cause. Remember, he who fights and dies is honored, but he who fights and lives is honored and rewarded.

Emperor Nakamori

Greetings from the Deathlord

Stupid adventurers? Your weak party is not enough to stop even my most dark-spawned drons. I would encourage you to stay in the security of your little homes, but I throw on misery and death. Your bold quest to stop me is sure to yield just that. Even if you defeat my lowly pawns, you will must answer to me, face to face.

Should you insist on pursuing that fatal course, I offer these choice seven words, six letters, and your innards prevent us from meeting.

Go now. And prepare to embrace your Emperor in my hell.

YOUR GOAL

Your goal as Deathlord is to identify and defeat the source of evil loose in the world of Lora. If you succeed, you'll earn the gratitude of the Emperor of Kodan and his promised reward. To do that, you need to collect clues and artifacts. You also need to build up your party, gathering strength and knowledge to help you accomplish your aims.

GETTING STARTED

Follow the instructions on the Command Summary Card to start Deathlord. The card also includes Repeatable commands and instructions for using disk values.

CREATING A PARTY

Assembling an effective party of adventurers is crucial for success. Each party can have from one to six members.

First Party

When you start Deathlord for the first time, six adventurers await your command. If you're an inexperienced player, you may want to use them to sample Deathlord before you send your newly-created characters into the lap of a demon. Once you're familiar with how Deathlord works and know the types of adventures you want, you can replace them. Even if you're an experienced player, you can use this party to get an idea of the scope of the game.

CREATING NEW CHARACTERS

When you create new characters, you choose such things as race, class, alignment, and sex (See below for complete details). As you assemble your group of adventurers, be sure that each character complements the party. A proper mix of warriors and magic-users makes a well-rounded party that has the option of using martial or magic. Add a thief to pick a lock or two, and the party could have the gratitude of the Emperor in no time.

Races

The first step in creating a character is to pick from one of the eight races.

Human	Humans are hardy and strong, which, incidentally, makes them the predominant race in Lorn. Of all the races, only Humans can be a member of any class.
Toski	Toskis are magiclovers, which makes them good magic-users. They may be physically weak, but they've got long lives.
Mixotaki	The Mixotaki is a hybrid of Human and Toski, being smarter than the stronger than the latter. They excel in almost any class.
Kobold	That does, doesn't it? This race has magnificent statistics. Although they aren't large, they are strong and tough. Kobolds prefer to avoid the magic arts since they have a tough time casting spells. They're best as fighters or thieves.

Gnomes	The Gnome is like the Kobold but has a greater respect for nature and is more social. Gnomes also like to use magic, with Gnomes high on class potential.
Otoke	The Otoke is a darker and darker version of the Troll. They are terrible, they make fine slaves and assassins.
Troll	These homely hunchbacks are strong but fairly slow-witted for spell casting. Scouts is the best class for them, but if truly desired, you can make a Troll a Shaman.
Ogre	A hybrid species of Human and Troll, the Ogre is stronger than the Human and brighter than the Troll. They're usually fighters and thieves, but can also become decent Shamans.

Attributes

All characters have seven mental and physical attributes, each ranging from a value of 3 to 21. While values are distributed randomly, you have a measure of control over each character's values when you create your party. During the course of play, a character's attributes will rise and fall as events occur.

Strength (STR)	The amount of damage your character can inflict on an opponent during combat. You'll want to make your fighting character strong.
Constitution (CON)	Your character's health and, ultimately, his or her ability to survive. A character with a higher Constitution is tougher to kill.
Size (SIZ)	Fighters tend to be large while magic-users are small. Big characters are better at swishing down doors and doing other things where greater mass is an advantage.
Intelligence (INT)	A character's mental capacity. High intelligence for magic users improves their spellcasting abilities and lets them recover Power faster.
Dexterity (DEX)	Agility and nimbleness. High Dexterity helps your character avoid hits and land the first blow during combat. Dexterity is also important to thieves for success in picking locks, avoiding traps, and stealing merchandise.
Charisma (CHA)	Your character's physical beauty and personal abilities, which can affect transactions or negotiations.

DEATHLORD

Power (PWR)

A character's magical aptitude. It's important to spellcasters since Power determines the number of spells that they can cast. Power is measured on a one-to-one scale (i.e. a 4th level spell costs 4 power points).

Classes

The classes you get to choose from depend on the character's race and attributes, as shown on page 7.

Assassins

These assassins are better fighters than the Yakuza and also have a greater selection of weapons. They possess limited throwing abilities.

Samurai

The classic mercenaries. Samurai live out to any mission that pays well. The combat-hungry Samurai can wear any armor and use any weapon.

Gonshi

The Gonshi confuse and befuddle opponents with a variety of illusions. Their numbers are fewer than the Mikosukae.

Kikigasa

Over time, Kikigasa go into a frenzy which gives them great strength, but leaves them prone to attacks from opponents. Like the Yakuza, they avoid heavy, restrictive armor.

Kishi

These noble warriors are dedicated to the principles of honor, justice, and order. They also enjoy casting a Shinto spell or two.

Kusaki

The peasant Kusaki are the unscrupulous of the realm — mostly because nobody would care to touch them.

Mikotomori

This rare class is highly respected. They may be weak fighters, but they have a variety of potent spells to neutralize and slay opponents.

Ninja

The Ninjas are specialists in hand-to-hand combat, as befits a secret order. They also aren't too bad with conventional weapons.

Ronin

Ronin are corrupt brutes who look out only for themselves. They enjoy a kicking, gouging fight where they can employ dirty tricks. A poison dreg supplies the evil Ronin with a few Shinto spells.

Spyshi

This solitary class of scouts and trackers is skilled with all types of weapons, although they favor bows and axes. For maximum mobility, they should wear light armor. Kyozai enjoy working with Shimon orders.

Samurai	Another honorable order, the Samurai takes pride in his or her fighting techniques. Samurai reach their skill peak with special weapons of honor.
Shugen	Shugen of different lands share common rituals and spells. They use medium-weight armor and smooth weapons, and can cast many curative and protective spells.
Shimon	A secretive class, Shimon like the outdoors, deriving from nature to cast spells. Metal armor cuts their casting power, so they usually don leather armor.
Shokunja	These disciples of Iokasun resemble Ninja in makeup, but train for enlightenment and not assassination. Less skilled than the Ninja in combat, the Shokunja compensate with some spell-casting abilities.
Yabango	Northern and primitive to the core, Yabango are instinctive survivors and tough in a fight. What they lack in technique, they make up for in sheer numbers. Yabango use heavy armor.
Yakusa	The cunning Yakusa is best at lockpicking and spy reconnaissance and not so good at fighting. For extraordinary activities, the Yakusa enjoys stealing from merchants.

Alignment

In most cases, there are three alignments to choose from: good, neutral or evil. Alignment has more bearing on what characters can be put together in a group. Characters who are innately good or evil will have their alignments assigned automatically.

Sex

The character's sex has little bearing on his or her abilities to carry out a task. Female fighters are just as capable of handling a dragon's head as male fighters.

ONSCREEN ACTIVITY

When you're done creating your characters and enter the world of Lorn, you'll see a screen full of information. The upper right box shows the time, and the sun and moon cycles. Underneath that box is your group's name.

DEATHLOD

The center right box lists the names of those in your party in their roster order. Beneath that is the nature of your location (i.e. indoor or outdoor). If you're engaged in combat, this area tells you what type of enemy your opponent is and how many there are.

The bottom right box shows information related to the commands you choose. If you're in the midst of a fight, it shows attacks made by you and your opponent. To change the speed at which the messages scroll by, use the "S" command to change the time lag.

The bottom left box displays the commands you choose. The remaining area of the screen is the scene of your adventure.

Statistics

During the course of play, you can examine your character's attributes and the items he or she possesses. Enter the number that represents the character's order in the party. (If you list <Roster> without selecting a number, you'll see the party leader's statistics.) First you'll see a general description of the character. Press <Status> (or the space bar) to see the seven attributes. Press <Picture> again and you'll see the character's possessions. (If he or she has no possessions, you'll bypass this screen.) Press <Picture> one last time to see the listing for armor, gold, robes, and food. The maximum values for these four items are: armor = 10, gold = 10,000, robes = 10, and food = 100.

Party Leader

To make playing a little easier, you designate a party leader who automatically performs all actions. The party leader is the one whose name is highlighted on the roster. You can change it by pressing "M" and then the number of the character you want to be the new leader. Having a party leader doesn't mean that the fate of the group lies in the hands of one, because you can override the party leader and have any character perform any action at any time.

Let's say you want a lock picked. There's two ways to do it. 1) Press "P" for Pick Lock and then enter a direction that the attempt will be made. The party leader automatically picks the lock since you didn't designate a character to do it. 2) Press "P," enter a character number from 1 to 6, and then enter the direction that the attempt will be made. The character you chose does the work in this case.

COMBAT

Combat is inevitable when you roam the mountains that ply the highways and byways of Deathlod. You needn't fear combat, provided your warriors are well-equipped with armor and weapons and your offensive spellcasters are ready.

Warriors are your best attackmen and least vulnerable to monster-inflicted damage. Magic users, on the other hand, are most vulnerable but can protect themselves with defensive spells. Retreating is a good way to shield weaker party members. Negotiating is an options with some monsters, though others will demand satisfaction with carnivorous disdain. Sometimes it's wiser to have individuals retreat or have the entire party flee.

Getting blooded a few times gives you insight about the strengths of different monsters. It's a general rule that the serious foe is annihilated by a combination of repeated warrior attacks and weighty magician's spells, while the lightweights may fall under the force of a single spell or a few told hits. Successful combat has its benefits. You can reap much in money and armor. You can gain experience. You can live to see a new day. The bigger the kill, the bigger the reward.

Weapons and Armor

You can buy the following items in various weapons shop. When a character buys armor, he or she automatically wears it. If the character is already wearing armor, he or she is forced to drop it unless it's first given to someone else. The table shows what class of characters can use which weapons and armor. Magical items are not listed.

Healing

Your characters can expect to be injured in combat or from trying to force entry into certain areas. Time usually heals these wounds, but certain spellcasters can hurry the process along with curative spells. If spellcasters lose too much power, they may temporarily lose their ability to use certain spells.

The most exotic form of damage, like poison and disease, requires more than rest to overcome. Sometimes it takes a spell. Other times a drink from a magical spring is the cure. There also are a number of temples throughout Lore offering healing services — with a proper donation, of course.

Life after Death

Death is not necessarily the end. For those unfortunate ones who die in the early stages of the game, resurrection is offered at a number of temples and religious establishments for a fee. For those more experienced, there are high level spells which restore life. There are also rumors of items which possess great magical power that can bring back the dead.

Should the same deadly fate befall the entire party, the game stops. Remove the scenario disk, insert the boot disk, and reboot the computer. You can then disband the characters using the Character Overview and use another character (who's alive) to resurrect them.

Another option, although not the most honorable, is to copy the characters from the last backup disk you made of your group. A final alternative is to assemble an entirely new group of characters and head out anew.

Experience

Gold and armor have their material charms, but experience is just as valuable to your character. The more combats you enter and the more monsters you attack, the more experience you'll gain. And as you gain more experience, you become more capable of handling the next quest you get into. Sorry, but fleeing from combat or negotiating with monsters won't give you experience.

Another important aspect of experience is that the more you acquire, the closer you get to advancing another level. The higher your level, the more powerful and effective you are in your role. Fighters fight better, thieves steal better, and spellcasters cast more powerful spells. When a character has accrued enough experience points to advance a level, you'll see a plus (+) next to the character's name. All the character has to do is find a training center and pay a fee to advance a level. (This fee is necessary to cover expenses such as supplies, training costs, spell books, religious articles, etc.)

GETTING AROUND

Money

The monetary system in Lore is based on the gold piece, or GP. You can buy the goods, services, and information that you need with gold pieces.

Equipment

You'll come across many pieces of equipment, some mundane, some magical. A few items are so rich of exceptional power which the character must accommodate in order to solve the game. Some equipment can't be used by certain individuals. A character can carry only one each of the following items: a hand weapon (like a sword), a missile weapon (like a bow), armor, a shield, miscellaneous armor, miscellaneous item (like a lock pick or holy symbol), jewelry, and a scroll.

Time

Time passes at about one Dendilford hour for every five real minutes. The more actions you perform, the faster time passes. (You can expedite matters by pressing the space bar repeatedly.) At about 4:00 p.m. the sun begins to set. When the sun goes down and darkness shrouds your way, you can either camp out for the night or light a torch and keep going. Sunrise begins at about 4:00 a.m.

Maps

As your party moves through the many dungeons, caverns, and labyrinths, you can map their movements so your characters don't have this nagging sense of déjà vu. Dungeons are laid out one screen block per one graph paper block, with each dungeon layer fitting on a single sheet of standard 8 1/2 sheet of graph paper. Look at your maps with a critical adventurer's eye. You may notice an unmarked area in an otherwise packed map. Could that be the start to a lower level? Or you'll notice something unusual about a corridor. A hidden room, perhaps?

A word about teleporters. A quick blink of the screen combined with the fact that you're somewhere totally different or not getting anywhere at all suggests that you've been teleported. For instance, you may be walking down a corridor that never seems to end. In fact, you may be getting repeatedly teleported a few steps back in the corridor, so you're retracing the same path over and over. As soon as you catch on to the fact you've been teleported, correct your step, if necessary.

Areas

The world of Lorn possesses a variety of climatic areas. The teleportic regions have forests, plains, and swamps. The sand regions are made up of desert sands and scrub. The frozen regions to the north have tundras, frozen marshes, and some forests.

To travel between these varied continents, you'll need to use the great seas. You'll find ports where you can engage the services of a friendly ship in exchange for some gold. An alternative is to forcibly engage the services of an unfriendly ship by attacking it. Sea lanes be advised — oceans are especially dangerous places.

Buildings and Places

Common buildings and places in Lorn hold clues and items vital to your quest. The more you investigate, the more you'll find.

Castle	The only known castle belongs to Emperor Makamoro in Kodan. Rumor is that another strongly fortified castle exists on an enchanted island east of Kodan.
Cave	Most commerce happens in the caves and the prices are usually lower here than in other areas.
Dungeon	These labyrinthine caverns and natural teleporters can be found in any region. Look for a cave mouth or grotto, take a deep breath, and enter.
Fortress	These fortified strongholds guard mountain passes from invasion.
Pyramid	These buildings in the great southern deserts house legends of kings and are protected by powerful curses on the living.

Ruins	The remnants of a town, city or village may house dangerous monsters or precious treasures and valuable clues.
Temples	Found in remote areas, these places are set up by non-human gods. Caution is advised around temples.
Towers	Towers are inhabited by Wizards and Magesmasters of ill repute who choose to remove themselves from society in order to perform ghastly experiments and rituals.
Towns	These are smaller settlements than cities. While mostly residential, there are shops for the wandering traveler to restock his or her dwindling supplies. Be sure to talk to the townsfolk for the latest kingdom gossip.
Village	These peasant communities can offer food and lodging to the weary adventurer. Some are rumored to offer death quests...

Objects

Knowing the following common items can help you in your quest.

OBJECT	QUALITIES
Acid	Harms living characters
Arihan's Wall	Magic wall that saps strength of those who try to pass through
Bar	Water transportation
Back/Treasure	Hides party
Chest	Store coins and equipment
Chute	Drops characters into a lower level of the dungeon
Coffer	Holds valuable treasures
Coffin/Gravestone	Holds rare treasures and undead scores
Darkness	Light-consuming void
Door	Must open or smash to pass through
False Door	Does not open
Fire	Provides light or deters intruders
Flame Wall	Looks like normal wall but can be passed through
Illusory Object	Deceives character
Mass Grave	Houses the dead (and maybe undead)
Pit Trap	Concealed pit possibly spiked, can be climbed out of
Pool	May contain good or bad magic

COMMANDS

You can use the following commands almost anywhere. In most commands, the program assumes that the party leader is performing the action unless you indicate that another character will act by entering his or her roster number.

- |          |                                  |   |
|----------|----------------------------------|---|
| A | Attack                    | Press this key and a direction to initiate combat. During combat, just press "A" to return attack.  |
| B | BoardDisembark | This command either helps your party leave land for a waiting (and friendly) ship or disembarks them onto dry land. Follow up the command with a direction.   |
| E | End camp                  | This converts your party from a pitched camp.   |
| C | Cast                      | This puts your character into a spell-casting mode. You'll be queried for a character number and then a spell name, which you must type in full. You can also press <Shift> and ? simultaneously to get a list of the spells that character can use. Next to the word "yes," you'll see a value for Power. The more spells you cast, the lower it goes. You can't cast certain spells unless you have enough Power. |

D	Drop DMFGWT	Enter "D" and then the letter of the type of item you want dropped (E = equipment, F = food, G = gold, T = torches). Once you drop something, it's gone for good, you can't change your mind and pick it back up.
E	Enter	Press "E" and a direction key to pass through something. An area doesn't have to be visible to be enterable.
F	Search	Press "F" and then enter a direction to search the area for traps, secret doors, or anything unusual.
F	Fire	Use this if you'd like your party to make a run for it. The sooner you use this command during combat, the better your chances are that you'll get to flee.
G	Get Item	This command opens chests, coffins, and caskets, removes money from areas, and steals from a merchant's counter. Press "G" and then a direction.
H	Hide	Hide may (or may not) successfully hide the party from monsters. While hiding, any new actions will reveal the party and their position.
I	North	Use this to move your party up one space.
J	West	Moves your party one space left.
K	East	Moves your party one space right.
L	Light Torch	Type "L" and any character's room number. If the character you choose has a torch, he or she will light it.
M	South	This moves the party one space down.
N	New Leader	Type "N" followed by a character's room number to establish a new party leader. His or her shape now represents the party.
N	Negotiate	Let a character negotiate with a monster. Can range from offering food to unabashed pleading. The monster may leave, ask for money and then leave, or ask for money and still attack.
O	Open	To communicate with a character outside the party, press "O" and a direction key. (This is a great way to pick up clues for play.) At the prompt "Type", enter one of the following options.

DEATHLORD

- A) Buy purchases merchandise in a shop
- S) Sell sells excess or unwanted items in a shop.
- C) Clear meaningless casual conversation with someone.
- T) Talk attempts to get information from someone.
- I) Inquire causes "Re" (short for "regarding") to appear, type in the subject of interest to get specific information.
- OG) Offer Gold offers a sum of money to someone who says "Buy up".
- OE) Offer Item offers a piece of equipment or an item to someone.

A character says in the story mode until your press Return without entering information or press Esc.

- P Pick Lock Enter "P" and then a direction to have a character (with the right tool) try to pick a lock.
- Ctrl-P Pitch Camp This lets you camp for 1 to 24 hours. Time goes faster when you pitch camp, enabling your characters to recover. Hit points and Power quarters. Use this also to wait out the night hours. But don't sleep too soundly — you can still be attacked while you camp.
- Q Saving Game Use this to save your game at any time except during combat (You should stick out your battles for experience, anyway).
- R Read Press "R" followed by a direction key to read a sign.
- R Retreat Moves the character whose turn it is to the back of the group on the next round. Good for injured characters.
- S Smash Press "S" and a direction to have your character try to smash against a surface (like a door). There's a damage penalty for failure.
- S Skip Causes the current character, and those after him or her, to skip their attacks. Handy if your spellcasters (grouped together at the end of the roster) need a rest but the fighters want to keep healing. In this case, press "S" when you get to the spellcasters.
- T Give EQUIP This lets you pass an item. Type "T" and then the letter of the kind of item you want to pass (E = equipment, F = food, G = gold, I = torch). You're then asked who's getting the item and who's giving it. Remember, you can only hold so much, so if you transfer something to someone who already carries a full load, he or she will automatically drop an item.

U	Use	Press "U" and return. Then type in the number of the character whom you want to use something. Next, you'll get a list of items that are available for use. Choose a piece of equipment with the arrow keys. A number after its item name indicates the number of charges it has. Double asterisks () after a name mean that its use is unlimited.
V	View	Follow view with a direction to get information on the selected object or character.
W	Ready Weapon	Select "W" and then the letter of the type of weapon you want to ready (O for open hands, H for hand weapons, and M for missiles).
X	Exchange	Exchange two characters swap equipment with each other. Press "X", indicate who's getting and who's giving, and then choose a piece of equipment to exchange.
Y	Yell	Enter "Y" and then any word that the character wants to say. During your journey, you'll find special words that the characters will want to yell, sometimes in relation to a spell.
Z	Dead	Press "Z", a character number, and a direction to stake a flag in a dangerous wilderness.
1		Displays statistics for character 1.
2		Displays statistics for character 2.
3		Displays statistics for character 3.
4		Displays statistics for character 4.
5		Displays statistics for character 5.
6		Displays statistics for character 6.
Shows		Shows statistics for the party leader.
Esc		Aborts any action started but not completed.
Ctrl-A		Use this to assign macros (up to four). A macro is a string of commands that can be executed by a single key stroke. Type "Ctrl-A" and then assign the macro a number from 1 to 4. Next, enter the commands you want executed in succession. The comma (,) works as a «Return» within a macro command. For example "C,NA$U" would cause whoever with the party leader is-cast a Naze spell. It would execute as follows: "Cast-1" appears followed by "Naze:" and then "NA$U". "C3NA$U," is the same except that only the third character on the roster will cast the spell. You can have up to 13 characters in a macro string.

DEATH LORD

Ctrl-S		Toggles the sound on and off.
A		Executes macro 1.
.		Executes macro 2.
/		Executes macro 3.
)		Executes macro 4.
#	Roster	Use this to change the order of the party characters. Enter "8" followed by a number from 1 to 6. The character is moved to wherever the highlighted box is.
$	Pool Gold	This lets you take the gold from other members of the party and add it to the sum of the character indicated (up to his maximum carrying capacity). Any amount remains in the possession of the original character. The character whose name is highlighted will give the gold. Enter "5" followed by the number of the character who will get the gold.
:	Time Lag	Lets you set the length of the delay between the displaying of information in combat. Enter any value from 0 to 255, the higher the slower.
Space Bar		This key causes the party to wait and do nothing for two moves, or forfeit a move in combat.
^		This helps a character kick-out of a girl after he or she has had the misfortune of falling in one.

SPELLS

Each of the four character classes of magic users has a large repertoire of spells. The spells that a magic user can cast depend on his or her level. The following chart shows what level a magic user must be in order to cast any spells at that level or lower.

MAGIC USER LEVEL	MINIMUM ACCEPTABLE SPELL LEVEL

Power is an extremely important aspect of spellcasting. You'll notice that when you press "C", Power appears in brackets next to the word "cast." The more spells you cast, the lower this number gets. Be sure to keep an eye on it; you may need to cast a healing spell worth four Power points, but to your surprise find you only have three points left. Remember, power regenerates with time and rest.

Shikai Spells

The Shikai spells are mostly protective and curative in nature.

Level	Spell	Description
1	Mend	Calls on power of person deity to repair 1 to 4 hit points of damage on a character, including the caster. Does not cure the dead or petrified, nor will it cure diseases.
	Alarm	Causes the air around the caster to give off a pale blue glow. Allows players to see more than a torch would show. Only effective in the still air of dungeons.
	Kiss	Provides selected character with protective kiss during combat, making him or her harder to hit. Effects are cumulative.
2	Moroi	Paralyzes 1 to 3 opponents for a time dependent on the caster. Each monster gets a chance to resist the spell.
	Douse	Slows effects of poison. Halves hit point loss until poison is neutralized or character dies.
	Trisho	Causes undead (ghouls, zombies, skeletons, etc.) in vicinity to flee. Creatures may try to resist the spell's influence. One of the few offensive Shikai spells.
3	Shusho	Lights up a larger area than the Alarm spell. Works only in still air of dungeons.
	Mocumaru	Helps paralyze victim recover limb use. A Shikai who is paralyzed will not be able to cast this spell.

DEATH LORD

	Caster	Blazes entire party during combat and endows adventurers with better fighting ability.
4	Curse	Reduces victim from recipient's body. Subdues strongest persons but doesn't remove hit points lost to the victim's strike. Reduces from 17 to 33 hit points of damage. Mongoose works like Nixie, only better.
	Mongoose	Casts a globe of defensive aura around the party, affording them some protection from attack for the duration of the magic.
5	Storage	Shoots tower of flames into air and hurls offending monsters. Potency of spell depends on caster's level.
	Touch	Restores life — but not vitality — to a slain character. Those restored permanently lose a point of constitution and are restored to one hit point. Success of spell depends on character's Constitution. Try Mongoose if this fails.
	Reveal	Restores from 33 to 66 points to a character. A stronger version of Mongoose.
6	Abuse	Most powerful curative spell available. Heals all damage a character has sustained. Top of the Shikon line.
	Reveal	Blasts all enemies to pieces at the very intonation of the word. Damage inflicted depends on the level of the caster.
	Reve	Chooses a place that the party can later be transported to in case of danger. Cast the spell and enter any secret word. At any time, use the "Yell" command, type in the secret word, and the party will immediately be transported to the location you previously picked out.
7	Disrupt	Caster causes to be swallowed by the ground and delivered to Hell's chambers to suffer eternal torment.
	Mongoose	Restores life and vitality to a character, except in cases of petrification. Causes no loss in constitution. Can be repeated if fails at first.
	Yavorak	Last chance for a character turned to stone to be turned back to flesh.

Shikon Spells

Like those of the Shinti, the spells available to the Shikon are mainly of a curative or protective nature, but they tend towards the evilness. The Shikon also have a few more offensive spells they like to use.

Level	Spell	Description
1	Kanmora	Uses plant life to ensnare enemy, holding 1 to 4 monsters fast for warriors to finish off. Works only on grass, bushes or trees.
	Idiakora	Reduces opponent in flickering flames for the duration of the magic and gives a character a bonus on his chance to strike the monster.

	Jishikan	Lets Shiken question the stories of the dungeons to determine how far underground the party is. Useful after being teleported.
2	Kisei	Causes the skin of the recipient to stiffen and become as hard as iron root. This cumulative spell can be cast on anyone.
	Danshi	Cures 1 to 8 points of damage on any character, including the caster. Does not cure dead or petrified players and does not cure diseases.
	Moya	Raises a thick mist around the party, shielding them while they try to escape combat unscathed. Chance of escaping depends on level of opposing monsters.
3	Syokusan	Cures most illnesses and diseases, including the foul touch of the dreaded mummy. Does not restore lost hit points.
	Komoru	Helps you find land when you're at sea. "Follow" is used only when land is very close or if the water below is extremely shallow.
	Yobuzuma	Bank of lightning cracks down from the heavens and smites enemies. Misty offensive spell.
4	Shuu	Causes the group to become impervious to regular fire and heat. Does not work on magical sources of fire.
	Sosori	Protects party from most common types of poisonous liquids. While it doesn't protect against all types of acids, it will reduce damage inflicted.
	Tsubomaru	Changes vegetation into edible food (is synthetic bread that lasts and lasts). The amount of food created depends on the vegetation the spell is casted on.
5	Mikoto	Creates a wall of eschgo flowers around offending monsters. Damage depends on the caster's level.
	Onozori	Similar to the lower-level Danshi spell, except that it heals from 17 to 32 points of damage.
	Jishin	Causes the ground beneath monsters to buckle and split, dropping the less agile ones into the muck, where they will perish.
6	Murakata	Rolls a giant, billowing cloud of flames from the hands of the caster, scorching any enemies in its path.
	Kyoshi	Causes monsters to go insane. Most will wander aimlessly and die, but some, spurred by the madness, fight with greater ferocity.
	Tsukishiro	Lets the party take on the form of the various animals there so they can walk unseen through the wilds. Creatures are oblivious to their presence.
7	Konron	Monsters who fail to resist this spell will stand still and gaze stupidly until they are slain.

Kamari Point at foe, unleash spell, and flee dies instantly. A single digit number with an excellent success rate.

Drakooris Random life — and possibly vitality — to a slain character. Those round will have one Hit point and Constitution will be lowered permanently by one.

Mahotsukai Spells

Mahotsukais are the lighters of the spellcasting branch. Their spells are wickedly offensive.

Level	Spell	Description
1	Toshi	Puts one opponent with small, fiery, red bolts. The number of missiles depend on the caster's level, with four being the maximum.
	Nori	Puts opposing creatures with relatively low levels into deep sleep. Length of sleep depends on caster's level.
	Tae	Shields recipients of spell against enemy blows during combat. Effects are cumulative.
2	Chikara	Fills party with a surge of strength to better inflict damage on foes. Effects are cumulative.
	Yamamori	Weakens monsters and reduces the damage that they can inflict on your party during combat. Has cumulative effects.
	Kowa	Stakes four into the heart of one opponent. If that creature fails to resist, it will die in blood pain.
3	Zuma	Unleash spell to cause a sheet of lightning to spread from the caster's outstretched hands, cutting down the opposing status.
	Isoga	Living members of the party will have their movements accelerated, enabling them to get in an extra attack in every round of combat.
	Kumo	Creates clouds of thick, sticky webs from air and entangles monsters in the area. Holds them fast until they manage to break free.
4	Hikari	Ball of rays flames out upon casting and then explodes among monsters. Damage depends on the experience level of the caster.
	Ugoki	Sends adventurers flying randomly from danger, moving them 1 to 8 squares away. Falls if wall or object as in the square to be landed on.
	Makura	Wave of fear sweeps the ranks of the opposing creatures. Those who fail to resist flee in panic, dropping anything that they are carrying.
5	Dokumo	Thick, black smoke forms a suffocating cloud around the enemy. Kills all but the strongest.
	Kouri	Paralyzes monster with fist-sized chunks of ice. The severity of the spell depends on the level of the caster.

	Holeyo	Causes the caster and those with him to become incorporeal for the duration of the spell, making them harder to hit.
6	Korosa	When this spell is uttered, those of an unfriendly disposition must resist or are slain instantly.
	Umaru	Lets the caster point a finger at the opponent and speak a word of power to destroy that enemy.
	Asash	It sweeps the enemies with sheets of blazing blue fire that burns like the flames of hell. Provides a thorough scolding.
7	Tobi	Freezes opponents in time, rendering them helpless while you escape or move around unhindered.
	Ugon	Escape spell that transports a party directly up or down in a dagonos, up to four levels.
	Taiyoki	Opens a gap between the sun and offending monsters, raking them with scorching flames. Most damaging.

Genkai Spells

Genkai have a bunch of spells that create illusions and are predominantly defensive.

Level	Spell	Description
1	Kiri	Places a sphere of darkness around the party, helping them to escape unnoticed from enemies.
	Hikosa	Showers of immobilizing sparks shoot forth from the caster's hand, damaging all those in its path.
	Shosen	Enhances a character's vision during combat, making it easier for the fighter to hit opponents.
2	Mikio	Creates brilliant or silvery light about caster so party can see better in dungeons. Only works indoors, where the air is calm.
	Miya	Makes a character blurry and translucent, and harder for enemies to hit during combat.
	Mokasa	Hits opponent's mind with roaring sounds and dancing notes of light. Those who can't resist the spell are unposed and can't effectively fight.
3	Kawa	Strikes overwhelming terror into the hearts of 1 to 3 monsters, causing them to flee.
	Nigyo	Power black fog around party, obscuring them from view and giving the party a chance to escape.
	Mamori	Hardly any number of enemies and offers a good target for a fighter's solid thrust.
4	Masjio	Makes all living members in the party invisible, reducing their chances of getting hit.
	Kakasa	Blends the party in with the environment so they become undetectable. Lasts as long as characters do not move or make noise.

DEATHLORD

	Genocide	Fells opponents with clouds of phantom missiles. Those who resist suffer less damage.
5	Melno	Spins a ball of colored light before the monsters, leaving them mesmerized and vulnerable.
	Morgora	Covers opponent with noxious-looking grey smoke and loud booming sounds, enabling the party to escape.
	Pajo	Regales creatures into saving adventures as their friends instead enemy impostors.
6	Uku	Cause party to enter an "unsafe" area that allows them to pass over water as if it were solid ground.
	Makawa	Strikes terror into the hearts and bowels of all opposing monsters. A refined version of Kawa .
	Kosoba	Imparts this word of power to blast the life from creatures that the party is fighting. Some opponents may suffer little effect from this spell.
7	Almagora	Creates an illusory duplicate of the party so adventures can slip away unnoticed. Most monsters are fooled by this spell.
	Furoi	Sends party into dimension of shadows and illusions, creatures see them as acquaintances or enemies.
	Tsakala	Creates a cascade of blinding silvery fire that engulfs the monsters with its hungry flames.

CLUES

As you journey from place to place, be sure to collect clues. Mingle with the various individuals you meet in cities and towns: guards, warriors, fellow travelers — even rogues and thieves. Talking and inquiring are your best bets for eliciting clues, though a nice chat never hurt anyone. Some of the folk with key information are really shy, be sure to look in odd corners for these wallflowers.

Signs scattered throughout inhabited and uninhabited areas also provide clues. If you encounter a valuable lead, take out pencil and paper to make a note of it. Try connecting it to memory and you may soon forget the game-completing clue.

Clues can give you insight into certain problems, provide a part of a complex phantom riddle, or even tell you where you can find someone or something.

EMPEROR'S TIPS

- Explore an area thoroughly before moving on to another or you may miss important clues. Search walls for doors and passages.
- If you are first-level, avoid going into the second or third level of the dungeon. Make short forays into the dungeons — and keep the doorway clues by

- When you are low on spell power or hit points, get out of or avoid combat situations. If you assault "one more monster", you may assault your very last monster.
- Diversify your party. Do not encumber yourself with six fighters who are unable to get out of a situation that one mage who could have easily resolved with a spell.
- Distribute yourselves strategically within the group. You will not want your Shamus in the front line being downed by a cyclone while the Samurai in the back row is spearing. Only the first three characters can attack or be attacked.
- Conserve your spells. There is no point in wasting a sleep spell on two problems when a dozen demons lay in wait around the corner.
- Save the game whenever something good happens to the party. Should you meet an untimely demise, you can recall your hard-earned spells.
- Do not worry about equipping the entire party right away. Just make sure your fighting front line (first three characters) have weapons at the outset.
- The inhabitants of my kingdom dislike those who without attack for the sheer joy of fighting. Avoid killing for fun unless you want to make your quest substantially harder.
- Return any documents that you find to me. You must also return to me a very special object acquired from an important battle if you wish to collect your reward.
